My last series was a time slip or what's called a period drama (I'm on a drawing break for future fantasy projects)

So! It's been a while. How can I draw things and stuff now-days? I gotta get self-awareness. It takes place in the future era

By the way, I drew the girl's clothes from a magazine called "Pink" that I'd bought. Many of the young people in it were really cute

Besides, IKK-san's consultation room was being featured. I really like IKK-san. Well, it was a teacher I read about last time.

Come to think of it, I've thought of revisiting a manuscript for a comic, but the girls' eyes... and huge insecurity.

Should I draw it while I silently pray for cute girls this time? (I don't notice plain girls) It's a little reflection. I don't think of it as a mask at all...

A mask is difficult to think of. It was awfully fun and easy to draw the two adults for it.

Men are Hard is my favorite movie. If I were born as a man, I'd want to be with lots of girls. Right now I have 48 DVDs to watch.

I know what it's like to flip through a Hana to Yume magazine, but right now I'm in no condition to continue "Take as Nigou go." So, I have to put this series on hiatus.

This creates problems for several people. And also, I want everyone to keep reading and not to worry about me.

I'm really, really sorry about this. I'll continue this series again when I get better.

I'll do my best to come back healthy. Please forgive me. And please wait for me.
